

'Somewhere blooms the blossom of parting'

by Rilke

Fragment, October 1924

Somewhere blooms the blossom of parting and bestrews
evermore over us pollen which we breathe:
even in the most-coming wind we breathe parting.

